The Summer Workshop on Macroeconomics and Finance is a cyclical event that brings together Polish economists affiliated with domestic and foreign institutions. The program features a selection of papers in macroeconomics, theory and applied economics. Each presenter has sufficient time for a thorough presentation and a lively discussion. We invite both theoretical and applied work, as both will enjoy ample room for comments and suggestions. We encourage all areas of economics research, with particular focus on macroeconomics and finance. Of special interest are studies on business and financial cycles, monetary economics, interactions between finance and macroeconomics, labor market economics, the theory and practice of central banking and economic growth, but we also welcome submissions in other fields of economics.

The event. We meet for the 11th time. The event is be organized in partnership with SGH Warsaw School of Economics and FAME|GRAPE. The conference language is English.

In the past editions our presenters came among others from the Bank of England, Banque de France, Columbia University, European Central Bank, Federal Reserve System, Imperial College London, International Monetary Fund, Narodowy Bank Polski, SGH Warsaw School of Economics, University of Oxford, University of Warsaw and University of Minnesota. The papers presented were later published in leading economic journals including Journal of the European Economic Association, Journal of International Economics, Journal of Finance, Journal of Money Credit and Banking or The Review of Financial Studies. We are convinced that we will again collect an excellent program.

Organizational details. The deadline to submit is the 15th March 2023. Strong preference will be given to completed articles, but extended abstracts are also invited. Authors of accepted papers will be notified by the 15th April 2023. The conference fee for presenters is set at 200 USD (100 USD for PhD students).
